EM Normandie School of Management is a private Grande Ecole in France, founded in 1871. It is one of the few universities with a long history and development in France, with campuses spread across various European countries (including Caen, Le Havre, Paris in France; Dublin in the Netherlands; and Oxford in the United Kingdom). EM Normandie has made significant efforts to ensure and enhance the quality of education, earning a ranking of 63 out of 90 top business and management schools worldwide by the Financial Times.

IFI was established based on the development of the French-speaking Computer Science Institute (Institut de la Francophonie pour l'Informatique) founded in 1993, and the incorporation of the French University Center in Hanoi (Pôle Universitaire Français à Hanoi) established in 2006. It has extensive experience in providing international programs in Business Administration and Finance-Banking from the undergraduate to doctoral levels. The International Francophone Institute (IFI), with more than 30 years of experience, is a high-quality interdisciplinary research and training organization under the Vietnam National University
